On Trump impeachment, divisions between urban and rural Democrats

Public sentiment complex beyond partisan lines.

First-term U.S. congresswoman Cynthia Axne, back home in her rural Iowa district for the Thanksgiving break, faced a room full of farmers on Saturday who made clear their opposition to the impeachment investigation of Republican President Donald Trump.

Axne, 54, avoided any mention of impeachment until one of her constituents, a Democrat who voted for her, said he views the investigation as a waste of time and money: "Let's not vote for impeachment. Let's get stuff done. I'm sick of it!", he bellowed. Others nodded in agreement.

Meanwhile, 1,000 miles away in the old industrial town of Wharton, New Jersey, freshman U.S. congressman Tom Malinowski was treated like a rock star when he told a crowd of about 150 he believed the evidence to impeach Trump was overwhelming.

With each mention of impeachment and denunciation of Trump, Malinowski was greeted with loud applause from voters packed into a tiny library basement, where the room hummed with talk of ousting the president.

These two freshman lawmakers flipped districts from Republican control in the 2018 midterm congressional elections, two of the 41 net gains that helped Democrats regain control of the House of Representatives for the first time since 2011.

Yet on impeachment, as they face close fights for their seats again next November, their approach is starkly different. Axne avoids any mention of it; Malinowski leans into the topic.

Polls show public sentiment about impeachment breaking along partisan lines, but the reaction of Democratic voters in these two swing districts suggests there is also a rural and suburban divide on the issue among Democrats.

"I don't talk about impeachment," Axne, who defeated Republican David Young in 2016 by just two points, said in an interview.

"These are hard working, salt of the earth people who just want to make a living and provide for their families. They're tired of what they consider the bureaucracy and the politics of Washington and that's true to what Iowans are. Impeachment is not a priority in their lives."

Axne supports the impeachment inquiry, and says if there is proof Trump abused his office and harmed America's national security in his dealings with Ukraine, she will vote to impeach him — even it means losing her seat. She agreed she could face voter backlash.

"My job is to work for the people here in this district and do a good job for them. But my job also is to protect this country. If we find out that the president has put us in harm's way, then I have absolutely no problem losing a seat over that."

To loud applause in his New Jersey district, about 50 miles west of New York, Malinowski said: "The president is free to pursue a foreign policy that he believes is in the national interest, but he is not free to pursue a foreign policy that only serves his political interest."

Malinowski, 53, a Polish-born former employee of the State Department, was the first New Jersey House member to call for Trump's impeachment. He asked the crowd to put up their hands if they were watching the hearings and nearly all of the some 150 people in attendance put their arms in the air.

There were five days of public hearings in the Democratic-led impeachment inquiry which concluded on Thursday. REUTERS

Guards charged over Epstein's suicide get trial date

2 Two correctional officers accused of covering up their failure to check on financier Jeffrey Epstein before he hanged himself will face an April 20 trial date. U.S. District Judge Analisa Torres scheduled the trial for Tova Noel and Michael Thomas at a hearing in Manhattan federal court on Monday. Both defendants have pleaded not guilty. Epstein's suicide on Aug. 10 came a little over a month after the well-connected money manager was arrested and charged with trafficking dozens of underage girls as young as 14 from at least 2002 to 2005. He had pleaded not guilty. Prosecutors say that Noel and Thomas, the only correctional officers on duty in Epstein's unit the night before he was found dead, failed to carry out checks on Epstein and falsely recorded that they had. Epstein had been taken off suicide watch shortly before his death. REUTERS

Little Black Pill is Taking Over The Male Potency Market

A new drug-free alternative is expected to give big pharma's famous sex pill a run for its money. And the best part? No prescription will be required.

For Immediate Release

US – For almost three decades, the “little blue pill” has dominated the sex pill market with little to no competition.

But industry insiders believe its time on top may soon be over with news that the highly-anticipated, drug-free alternative, Onyx, is now available.

Cleverly dubbed the “little black pill” by its users, the new once-daily tablet targets the same erection-pathways as traditional sex pills but with one major difference.

According to researchers, it's this difference which has big pharma so worried and consumers so excited.

Always Ready, Always on the Mind

If you go on Viagra's website, the first thing they tell you is, “you will not get an erection just by taking Viagra. You must be sexually stimulated for it to work.”

To Dr. Allen Green, that statement is extremely concerning.

“Most of my patients with erection issues have lost their sex drives, too. They're ashamed to admit it but they don't even think about sex that much unless it's worrying about the last time they had it. And other doctors will attest.”

It was this fact that inspired Green to develop Onyx.

Not only does his amazing little-tablet help men stay harder and firmer for longer, it also triggers intense arousal. In laymen terms, it makes users hornier so that sex is always on their minds.

Green shares that this one difference is powerful enough to completely transform your sex life, at any age, but works miracles for those in their senior years.

“I can't tell you the difference this makes. The anticipation it creates is absolutely incredible. Since men know they're going to be able to perform, they're thinking about sex all the time.”

Green shares the secret to Onyx is something called MCMOA or multi-channel mechanism of action.

Where most sex pills work in just one way, his works in two. The major advantage of using natural ingredients vs. a drug (chemicals).

Essentially his pill increases levels of a specific male hormone in the body tied to arousal (among other things) while boosting blood flow at the very same time.

The combination leads to strong and penetrating erections and incredible arousal – the perfect recipe for phenomenal sex.

The Experiment That Changed Men's Sexual Health

Dr. Green explains his inspiration for Onyx came after reading that you had to be aroused for the “little blue pill” to work.

An expert in natural medicines, he began experimenting with plant-based extracts with strong track records in men's sexual health.

In fact, these extracts were shown to get men harder, firmer, and hornier in real clinical studies.

“Most people have no idea these kinds of ingredients exist. It's a shame too because they're incredibly powerful. Some are even patented”, explains Green.

“Onyx is a blend of two of the most potent and studied ingredients I've ever come across. I also put them in the exact dosages used in clinical trials so users can experience the same amazing results achieved by men in the trial.”

A Clinical Dose in Every Capsule

Two primary ingredients make up Onyx.

The first is the patented ingredient Testofen. The second is the patented ingredient PrimaVie.

Both are found in a clinical dose in each tablet.

Research shows that as men get older, their testosterone levels gradually decline due to increased activity of the enzyme aromatase.

As less testosterone is produced and estrogen takes over the body, men begin to experience exhaustion, muscle loss, fat gain (man boobs) and a plummeting libido.

At the same exact time, the circulatory systems often begin to fail. With less blood flow to the penis, erections become weak and often too soft for sex.

The active ingredients in Onyx have been proven to increase testosterone levels sharply while improving blood flow to the penis – a multi-channel mechanism of action absent in most sex pills!

Harder, Firmer Erections and a Wild Desire for Sex

In an 8-week, randomized, double-blind, placebo controlled clinical study published by the Journal of Sport and Health Science, participants taking 600 mg of Testofen (the same dose in Onyx) experienced a 99% increase in free testosterone levels.

They also saw an increase in lean muscle, less body fat, and an increase in energy levels.

A secondary study on Testofen proved even more exciting. When asked about their sexual desire after taking the ingredient, men raved they were aroused all day long!

They were thinking about sex more often, were super aroused, and could orgasm.

“We were thrilled by the results we saw with Testofen. But then we added PrimaVie with it and things got even better!” raves Green.

According to published research on PrimaVie, the extract increases circulation through the entire body, including the penis. The result is longer, harder, more penetrating erections.

“I'm having the best sex I've had in years” explains Adam M of New York.

“I'm horny all the time. I feel like a kid again. Sex is always on my mind and I'm having a lot more of it. And the best part is I just take one pill a day. That's it. I don't have to time anything or wait for it to kick in”.

Pre-Release of Onyx Only Available to Readers

This is the official release of Onyx in the United States. The company has decided that it will not distribute their product to stores to ensure quality control. It may only be purchased directly.

A special hotline number with discounted pricing has been created for all Pennsylvania residents. Discounts will be available starting today at 6:00AM and will automatically be applied to all callers.

Your Toll-Free Hotline number is 1-800-892-7697 and will only be open for the next 48 hours. Only a limited discounted supply of Onyx currently available in your region.

BLACK FRIDAY Guide

The best things to buy on Black Friday 2019

A new study shows you the best deals to pick up this Black Friday.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

Black Friday is finally here. We can all agree, there's nothing like getting a great deal, especially when purchasing gifts during the holiday season. From new televisions to jewelry, there's nothing like finding the perfect gift for someone.

WalletHub's holiday shopping survey revealed that 52 percent of people don't think Black Friday offers the best deals, but that doesn't deter folks from shopping on the retail holiday.

When it comes to the holiday season, the most coveted gifts are actually gift cards followed by electronics, but what are the best deals? According to WalletHub, it's jewelry, which is discounted at a whopping 70 percent, followed by books, movies and music at 44 percent and apparel and accessories coming in at 39 percent.

The study compared popular retailer deals with Amazon's deals. If the prices were lower than Amazon's, they were considered a "good" deal. Here's who topped the list:

- Big Lots
- Harbor Freight
- Exchange
- Meijer
- Costco Wholesale
- True Value
- Office Depot/Office Max
- Stage
- ACE
- Nordstrom
- Target
- BJ's

Here are some of the top deals from well-known retailers:

Wrap it up with a bow on top

Carson Kressley talks new holiday competition series, "Wrap Battle."

MOLLY GIVEN
MollyGiven@metro.us

There are a lot of things that are inevitable when it comes to the holidays: festive music, bright lights, plenty of cookies and a lot of gift wrapping. Some people aren't exactly fans of gift wrapping, but others really go all out for the holiday tradition and on Freeform's new competition series, "Wrap Battle," audiences will get to see some stellar showcases of the latter. But the new show is also meant to inspire those who maybe aren't too keen on gift wrapping to come up with their own personal touch, which is also what judge Carson Kressley loves the most about it. Being a jack of all trades with all things design, it makes sense for Kressley to be on the panel and he truly fits the bill when it comes to loving everything about the holidays as well. Kressley sat down with Metro to chat about the show, his judging style and what audiences can expect to be inspired from on "Wrap Battle."

What first interested you to be a judge on "Wrap Battle?"

Oh gosh, well I love to work and it was a job so I was immediately on board, but most importantly I love anything that has to do with style and design. I think whether you're wrapping a gift or you're dressing a person for an event or you're creating a look for a runway, it's really all the same. It's about proportion, color, making it exciting and adding your own personal stamp to it. It was really in my wheelhouse, and I also happen to really love reality competition shows.

What does each episode of "Wrap Battle" consist of?

Well, we have the most amazing gift wrappers from all over the U.S. and they really are so talented. Some of them run businesses where all they do is professional gift a dress but sometimes they are making it out of something really unique. It's always something interesting and and you'll think "Wow, who would have thought of that?" It keeps the show quite fresh and fun. Some of the challenges are very big and over-the-top and will be very exciting, but some of the other ones will give people lots of ideas on how to create beautiful presentations themselves for the holidays.

What were you looking for when you were judging and was it ever difficult to choose a winner?

It's always difficult because you get to fall in love with the contestants on the show, and I always want everybody to do really well. So that part is hard. But my job as a judge, whether that's being a judge on "Wrap Battle" or "RuPaul's Drag Race" or the Miss Universe pageant — whatever it is, our job as judges is to ask, "Did you meet the criteria of the challenge and did you do the best job?" So in that way, it's not that difficult. I think what I always look for is someone who's executed all of the components of the challenge but did it in their own personal way so that it has their stamp on it and you know it's their work.

What do you love the most about "Wrap Battle?"

I think ultimately it's a holiday show, and since I love the holidays, that adds a little extra glitter and sparkle for me. But I think I love this type of show because I love the creativity. I don't think a lot of shows on TV focus on creativity in this way and that's what I found so entertaining and inspiring about "Wrap Battle."

"Wrap Battle" is airing now on Freeform.

Gingerbread hugs and peppermint kisses

Host Paige Davis talks new spirited competition show, "Holiday Gingerbread Showdown."

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

At one point or another during the holiday season, most of us were involved with making a gingerbread house. Some were massive and intricate, others were uh... unique, but most of all were made with love. However, whether you were a fan of the classic seasonal tradition or not, chances are you were still impressed with the really amazing creations some bakers and dessert chefs were able to whip up gingerbread-style, and in Food Network's latest holiday competition series get ready to have your jaw drop. Host Paige Davis sat down with Metro to give the scoop on the show, why she likes this specific competition series and dive into more on why "Holiday Gingerbread Showdown" will truly get you into the holiday spirit.

How did you first get involved with hosting for "Holiday Gingerbread Showdown?"
It's a funny story actually.

There's a woman at TLC named Megan and she called me and prefaced by saying, "Now that Discovery and Scripps have merged, Food Network is no longer our competition, we're all family. We were wondering if you'd like to do 'Holiday Gingerbread Showdown.'" I paused for a moment, and I thought really deeply and I said "I will so lose, but yes, I'm game and I will do it."

What will viewers be watching go down on each episode of "Holiday Gingerbread Showdown?"

So, there are three contestants per episode, and the winner of each episode moves on to be the three contestants in the finale. Each episode has its own theme, and the contestants were told what that theme was ahead of time because these gingerbread pieces take literally hundreds of hours to make — they are massive, the baking alone takes a tremendous amount of time. They are able to plan but they have to ship all of that stuff to the studio in Los Angeles with only ten hours left to complete their masterpiece. They have to assemble it and re-make any pieces that might have broken in shipping or transport —

Paige Davis,
NETWORK

that's where a lot of the jeopardy comes in. Even the more experienced bakers or competitors found themselves with broken pieces, sometimes large and sometimes small. You've still got to take the time to whip up the batter and re-make whatever pieces broke, so it's a lot. Also on any Food Network show, you have to have something for the judges to eat, right? You can't really eat these gingerbread masterpieces.

They are technically edible, you wouldn't get sick, but it's not like eating a gingerbread cookie. You don't want to take these houses apart, so we throw challenges at them midway and will have them make a special treat for the judges, and not only does it have to be delicious and accomplished right now, but it also has to fit into the overall theme of the piece.

Hosting must be such a fun gig, are there any fun memories from filming that stand out to you?

I'm probably throwing myself under the bus here, but as much as I love to entertain and love to cook and be in the kitchen, there are a lot of things that I don't know. I definitely don't do a lot of baking, and I really had no clue what modeling chocolate was — I'd never heard of it. So, the contestants were getting ready to do their treat for the judges and one of the contestants was using modeling chocolate and Mary Berg, one of our judges, was talking about how she hoped one of the treats was chocolate because she was in the mood. So I'm going on and on about how Mary must be so happy because this treat is made of chocolate, and they were all looking at me like I was crazy. Eventually, I clue into that fact, and later on Adam Young explains to me that modeling chocolate has the same taste as a bland, stale Tootsie Roll. So yeah, at that moment I was not the brightest light on the tree.

Is there anything that sets "Holiday Gingerbread Showdown" apart from other competition shows?

When you think about a gingerbread competition, everyone thinks it's just going to be a house — that's what we all know and love. We do have structures in the competition that are like houses, but there are also structures in this competition that will blow your mind. It's really incredible. But I also do think part of the reason people will like the show is because it's the type of comfort television they've known to grow and love on Food Network. I like that we really get to know the contestants, it's not just a one-hour special, it's a four-night series. "Holiday Gingerbread Showdown" premieres Dec. 1 on Food Network.

HOW TO PAIR BEER WITH YOUR THANKSGIVING DINNER

Thanksgiving week is finally here!

Now comes the dreaded question: how do I pair Thanksgiving dinner with booze? If you're still struggling to pair your dinner with the right alcoholic beverage, don't worry, I've got you covered. Who says you need to have wine with Thanksgiving dinner? Why not swap out your wine with some brews? I chatted with Erica Shea and Stephen Valand of Brooklyn Brew Shop all about how to pair beers with your Thanksgiving dinner.

Before we dive into details, Shea and Va-land want you to know that their "number one rule when it comes to pairing beer with food is, first and foremost, to pick something you know you like. It's easy to get swayed by a list that says 'x beer goes with y food,' and it likely does, but if it's a beer style that you aren't a fan of, no matter how well it pairs with your marshmallow sweet potatoes, it's not the beer you should be serving for your whole family."

When it comes to setting up your festive meal, the brew shop owners recommend three to four beer styles per Turkey Day meal. Although we love all beer here at Booze & Brews, Shea and Valand recommend avoiding IPAs; they told me "a big IPA is going to fight against all the flavors on your Thanksgiving plate rather than compliment them." They suggest if you want to showcase a local IPA, do it pre-meal while everyone is arriving.

Here's what the experts said to pair for your Thanksgiving Day favorites:

Turkey with gravy and a Belgian Saison "They're bubbly and really dry — hopefully unlike your turkey, which is tender and moist. Besides family, turkey is the most important part of the day for many, so a Saison will let you fully taste the bird and cleanse your palette as you move between sides."

Stuffing and a malty brown ale "A brown ale is essentially the bread of beers. Few things are quite as cozy as a plate of stuffing with a subtly sweet brown ale."

Sweet potatoes (with or without marshmallow) and a boozy brew "We brew a Bourbon Dubbel that we absolutely love pulling out at Thanksgiving. It's a Belgian-style ale brewed with bourbon. It's a little boozy and warming and perfect for the day."

Pumpkin Pie and a coffee-filled stout "We just released a kit to brew Beer Geek Breakfast Stout by Mikkeller (a Danish brewery who recently opened a brewpub at Citi Field). It's smooth, a little sweet, boozy, and filled with coffee. So it wakes you up a bit from your tryptophan turkey-coma."

If you're a beer lover who is looking for the perfect holiday gift or want to try your hand at brewing your own beers, don't forget to check out brooklynbrewshop.com.

Just one report from us during Thanksgiving Week...

We start with the Patriots, who beat Dallas this past Sunday but failed to cover as 6-point favorites in a 13-9 wrestling match. Poor weather conditions made it difficult for both offenses to move the ball. The only touchdown of the game came on a 12-yard drive! Offenses combined to go just 5 of 27 on third downs. Tom Brady and Dak Prescott barely combined for even 400 net passing yards despite throwing 70 times.

But, a win is a win. And a 10-1 record (7-4 against the spread) keeps the Patriots atop the AFC and Super Bowl futures boards. Next, they visit the Houston Texans Sunday night (NBC, 8:20 p.m.) in what should be a difficult road test. In their prior two road games:

*New England struggled offensively in a 17-10 victory at Philadelphia. Seattle won on the same field by a score of 17-9 this past Sunday. No shame to be close to Seattle in quality. But, the Patriots aren't showing much distance from other top contenders in recent action.

*New England was blasted in Baltimore 37-20 in a loss that exposed potential Patriots issues vs. playoff caliber competition.

Houston has extra time to prepare after surviving Indianapolis 20-17 last Thursday night. Stars were more one-sided than the score, with the Texans winning total yards 396-296 and yards-per-play 7.3 to 4.6.

It's a possible playoff preview, though any January meeting would likely be in Foxboro rather than on the Gulf Coast. New England opened at -3.5. You'll know sharps like the dog if that line drops to -3 through the week. Pro bettors did cash tickets on Dallas in this past Sunday's dreary weather amidst reports that Tom Brady wouldn't be playing at 100 percent.

In November (and December), it pays to read the injury and weather reports!

numbers posted this past Sunday at Circa Sports in Las Vegas.

That after head coach Steve Addazio's hot seat went volcanic in a 40-7 loss at Notre Dame as 20-point underdogs. BC was outgained 501-191 on 5.9 to 3.0 yards per play. It was the second time this season the Eagles were routed by one of last year's national semifinalists. They lost at Clemson 59-7, for a combined defeat of 99-14 to college powers.

While Boston College is 6-5 ATS, meaning it won't finish "worse than expectations" on a game-by-game basis overall, fans of the program are certainly expecting more competitive play vs. national elites. And, bowl eligibility shouldn't be an annual sweat. Addazio's straight up record at BC is 43-44.

This year's team probably won't rank in the top 100 nationally in offensive passing yardage or total defense after the final gun sounds in Pittsburgh.

The Celtics finally play that much-anticipated home-and-home series against the Brooklyn Nets the day before and the day after Thanksgiving. Kyrie Irving continues to battle a shoulder injury, which will take some electricity out of the air.

Though, the 2019-20 Celtics roster has been sending a message about how little it needed Irving since the first week. Boston ended its recent west coast trip 11-4 straight up, 9-4-2 against the spread. Against Eastern Conference opponents, Boston is 7-1 straight up, 4-2-2 ATS.

The Bruins won't get much of a holiday on ice, with a Tuesday-Wednesday-Friday-Sunday sequence this week at Montreal, at Ottawa, vs. the New York Rangers and vs. Montreal. Boston moved to 15-3-5 on the season with a weekend overtime win vs. Minnesota.

Because of high prices, Bruins bettors have only made about one unit this season at game-day money lines. Overtime losses count as betting losses! Bettors using the "puck line" (getting more attractive payouts, but laying -1.5 goals) are up more than three units because the Bruins often win handily.

No fun on Turkey Day Eve with Kyrie sitting

Celtics fans are thankful for freedom of expression this holiday season but they won't get the opportunity to voice their displeasure with Kyrie Irving on Thanksgiving Eve as he will miss the Nets-Celtics game due to a shoulder injury.

Former Celtics Paul Pierce and Kendrick Perkins both dished out their opinions on the situation this past weekend.

Pierce said on ESPN's "NBA Countdown" that he expects "one of the loudest boos in league history" when Irving does return to TD Garden and that the mercurial point guard deserves the boo-bath he has coming to him.

"This has never happened, a player of his caliber saying, 'I'll be back' and then leave," Pierce said. "This has never happened. When has that happened with a player of his caliber? It's never happened. He deserves it."

Perkins, meanwhile, dabbled in conspiracy theories - suggesting that Irving is faking the injury to avoid hearing it from the Garden crowd.

"Kyrie looked at the schedule before the season started and planned this whole injury thing because he didn't want to go back to Boston this upcoming week!!!," Perkins tweeted. "He didn't want that smoke in the Bean Town. Smh."

Perkins, of note, was teammates with Irving on the Cavaliers back in 2014-15.

Aries Take advantage of a situation that pops up. You'll be offered new information that will have an impact on your plans. If you network with your peers, you'll discover something you want to pursue.

Taurus Lend a helping hand to an old friend or relative. Rewards will be offered for your kindness and generosity. Save money instead of spending it impulsively.

Gemini A little loving will go a long way. Plan a romantic get-together. If you make an effort to look good, it will give you the boost you need to do your best.

Cancer An unforeseen professional change will push you in a new direction. Act fast to avoid missing out on an opportunity. An unusual partnership looks promising.

Leo Children and seniors will offer exciting insight into a situation you face. Participate in events that are family-oriented or involve a physical challenge. Do something special with a loved one.

Virgo Nothing is for sure, but as long as you stay on top of what's going on around you, it will be easier to control the outcome. Watch your back.

Libra Travel and learning go hand in hand. Attending an event that will bring you in touch with people from your past will be enlightening. Talks will lead to solutions.

Scorpio Don't disregard something or someone unfamiliar. It's time to try something new or to change your routine. Let your imagination take the reins, and see what transpires.

Sagittarius Your persuasiveness will kick in and take charge. Your diplomacy will bring about a positive turn of events. An interest someone takes in you or in what you are doing will surprise you.

Capricorn You'll be led astray by someone trying to take advantage of you. Secrets will be revealed, leaving you in a vulnerable position. Protect your possessions, personal information and reputation.

Aquarius You must make an effort to do something that will benefit you and those around you. If you have been selfish, now is the time to show your gratitude.

Pisces Problems at a personal level can be avoided if you are moderate and you keep your distance from people who are a terrible influence. Clear the air and start over. EUGENIA LAY
